FirstMatch™

Youth who are part of the child welfare, juvenile justice and behavioral health systems are often matched with programs that do not meet their specific treatment needs.

Selecting the right program for kids is difficult. Clinical information is complex and the time to make those decisions is short. When counties and providers make the wrong decisions, kids experience disruptions and cycle through multiple programs.

FirstMatch is a predictive analytics software solution that will match youth with the right treatment program the first time, significantly increasing the chances of a successful outcome. When a child's information is entered into FirstMatch, the tool uses a provider's historical outcomes to recommend the best program for that particular child. Counties and providers have the data to make an informed choice.

Smarter, data-driven recommendations lead to better matches, less cycling in and out of programs, reduced trauma and more successful outcomes for kids and providers.

FirstMatch™ Impact

FirstMatch™ is the only tool of its kind that will recommend a match between child and treatment program based upon a youth's specific predictive factors and a provider's clinical and outcomes data. This recommendation not only provides a better likelihood of success for youth, but offers providers opportunity for growth in organizational capacity through competitive advantage, an increased return on investment, and improved clinical outcomes.

Increases

- The number of youth who are accepted by a provider and are ultimately placed with that provider
- The number of youth in the program that align with the program's target population
- Program Completion rates
- Remain-out-of-Care rates

Reduces

- Amount of time youth is separated from their family
- Incidents commonly associated with an unsuccessful program match
- The likelihood of a youth's deeper involvement in the system
